About the Wisconsin ADRC

The Wisconsin Alzheimer's Disease Research Center (ADRC) combines academic, clinical, and research expertise from the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine and Public Health and the Geriatric Research, Education and Clinical Center (GRECC) of the William S. Middleton Memorial Veterans Hospital in Madison, Wisconsin. Founded in 2009, the ADRC receives funding from private, university, state, and national sources, including a National Institutes of Health/National Institute on Aging grant for Alzheimer's Research Centers (P50-AG033514).

The Wisconsin Alzheimer's Disease Research Center presents

Alzheimer's Disease & Related Disorders Research Day

JUNE 30, 2017 | MADISON, WI

PROGRAM & AGENDA

SPEAKERS

Paul Aisen, MD, is founding director of the University of Southern California (USC) Alzheimer's Therapeutic Research Institute (ATRI) in San Diego, an organization with the mission to accelerate the development of effective therapies for AD. As director of ATRI, he works to develop, design, and implement multi-center trials, collaborating with academic groups and pharmaceutical companies.

Robert Golden, MD, became the ninth dean of the UW School of Medicine and Public Health in July 2006. He serves as chair of the Board of UW Health, the university's academic health system, and also holds an appointment as a professor in the Department of Psychiatry. Dr. Golden's research interests focus on the biology and pharmacology of mood disorders.

Sanjay Asthana, MD, Duncan G. and Lottie H. Ballantine Chair in Geriatrics, is associate dean for gerontology and head of the Division of Geriatrics at Gerontology at the UW School of Medicine and Public Health. Dr. Asthana also serves as director of the Wisconsin Alzheimer's Disease Research Center and the Madison VA Geriatric Research, Education, and Clinical Center (GRECC).

Sterling Johnson, PhD, is a clinical neuropsychologist with research interests in brain function in Alzheimer's disease and related disorders. Dr. Johnson serves as associate director and Imaging Core leader for the Wisconsin Alzheimer's Disease Research Center. He also holds an NIH R01 as PI of the Wisconsin Registry for Alzheimer's Prevention (WRAP) longitudinal study.

Dorothy Farrar-Edwards, PhD, is professor of kinesiology and medicine, director of the UW Collaborative Center for Health Equity, and serves as a core leader in the Wisconsin Alzheimer's Disease Research Center. She conducts multidisciplinary research that addresses the effects of aging on functional independence and quality of life. She is particularly interested in the aging process in African Americans.
